Corn Price Higher After Firm Failure

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, April 6.—Forced closing out of trades belonging to a firm which had been conspicuous of late on the bear side of the corn market led to a fresh advance today in the price of nearby deliveries of corn. As soon, however, as the open interest referred to had been covered, the market underwent a sharp decline. The forced buying was estimated at 1,000,000 bushels. The subsequent setback was ascribed to heavy calling of margins, as much as 15 cents a bushel on corn being demanded in some cases. Opening quotations, which ranged from 3 1/2¢ decline to 1 1/2¢ advance, with May 1.65 to 1.67 and July 1.60 to 1.61 were followed by a tumble all around to well below yesterday's finish.

Outs lacked the artificial stimulus which at first lifted the corn market. From the outset, weakness was apparent owing to burdenous calls for greatly increased margins. After opening 1 1/2¢ down to 3 1/2¢ advance, including July at 84¢ to 84 1/2¢ the market underwent a general decline.

Upturns in the value of hogs gave relative firmness to provisions. Demand, though was not urgent.

Confidence on the part of the bulls seemed to be much diminished after announcement that the federal grand jury would investigate alleged manipulation of the market. Considerable liquidation by holders was in evidence. The close was heavy, 2 1/2¢ to 3 1/2¢ net lower, with May 1.62 1/2 to 1.62¢ and July 1.55 1/2 to 1.57.

Two Women Arrested for Picketing Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, April 6.—Disregarding warnings of the federal government that they would be prosecuted under federal penal statutes, two women favorable to an Irish republic resumed today the picketing of the British embassy which led yesterday to two arrests.

A few minutes after the women appeared carrying banners they were warned by the police to leave and when they failed to obey were arrested. They gave their names as Mrs. Honor Walsh, Germantown, Pa., and Miss Elaine Barré of Philadelphia.

After being booked at police headquarters on charges of violating the federal statute making it a felony to assault a diplomatic representative of foreign government the women were taken to the house of detention, United States District Attorney Laskey, who gave orders for the arrest, placed the amount of bond at $1,000. It was not furnished and the women were locked up.

As soon as the word of the arrests reached the headquarters of the women at a hotel, two more pickets with banners were sent to the embassy and it was announced that the pickets would be sent out in relays as rapidly as those "on duty" were arrested.

When the two women appeared the police stationed at the embassy summoned the patrol with police women to arrest them.

Later it was announced that since the police were interfering with the picketing on the street, it was planned to send women up in an airplane to drop literature on the embassy. The first flight it was said would take place at 4:30 p.m. today.

When window shades have become

If the hem end is in very bad condition it's a simple matter to remove the

Our Candidate for President

FRANK O. LOWDEN

Illinois presidential primaries Tuesday,
April 13.

A BUSINESS EXECUTIVE.

A man of business training and proved ability should be placed in charge of the important business of national government. When a billion dollar Congress was so rare that the political party responsible for it felt the need of making explanation, and when taxes were collected indirectly and were so small that the burden was scarcely felt at all, little attention was paid to governmental efficiency. But government has become complex and enormously expensive. In the expenditure of billions of the people's money, we should have at least as good business efficiency as that exercised by a private corporation.

In the search for presidential candidates, an effort is being made to bring forth men who can undertake with some degree of confidence the working out of a businesslike government, and the consequent reduction of the enormous burden of taxes.

In this connection, Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois is receiving the widest attention. During the three years of his state administration he has demonstrated effectively what can be done by business management. He began by abolishing the one hundred and twenty-five boards and commissions which divided executive authority and establishing in their stead nine departments, each having control of one division of the government.

The cumbersome State Board of Equalization, consisting of twenty-five members elected politically, has been abolished and a State Tax Commission of three experts has taken its place. The haphazard method of making appropriations by the legislature, with each institution and department asking for what it thought it could get and the legislature appropriating what it pleased, has been done away with and a satisfactory budget system is now used in making all appropriations.

As a result of these reforms, the state tax rate of Illinois has been reduced about thirty-three per cent in the past two years, in the face of war conditions.

In addition to this governmental reform, Governor Lowden has worked out a great program of internal improvements. These include a state highway system which will provide paved roads through every county in the state and touching every city of two thousand population or more, to be constructed entirely out of the earnings of the automobile license fees and without any expense to the general tax payers. A waterway system giving Chicago an outlet to the Gulf of Mexico has been adopted and the government engineers have approved it.

A constitutional convention, the calling of which Governor Lowden favored, is now in session redrafting the fifty-year-old constitution in the light of modern conditions.

A farm commission has been created to submit to the legislature proposed laws designed to curb the growing tenancy evil on the farm. A number of laws have been enacted to protect workers and to encourage the growth of industries.

This remarkable record of achievements made by Governor Lowden of Illinois is pointed to by his supporters as the best possible indication of what he could do for the nation if elected to the presidency. They submit that he is just the type of man the nation needs in this particular crisis.

But Governor Lowden's availability does not depend entirely upon his record as governor, remarkable as that record is. He began life in the most humble circumstances and forged ahead by his own personal efforts. He has learned by hard knocks the experiences of life. He has participated actively in business all his life, and for many years has been engaged in practical farming.

JAPAN'S RE-BIRTH.

Japan's inevitable change into a modern democracy is apparently beginning. An agitation for universal suffrage has frightened the government into dissolving Parliament. Riots in Tokio by mobs clamoring before the premier's residence have been broken up by the police. But clubs and a suspension of parliamentary government cannot compel a nation to abandon its demand for human rights. Japan now limits the franchise to those who pay certain taxes, thus eliminating a large part of the populace from the polls. No modern nation of the first rank can permit that condition to continue. Not all the power of militarism can hold back the democratic tide. An article in the March number of The Atlantic Monthly gives evidence of an encouraging repudiation by the Japanese of the militarist spirit. Dr. Victor S. Clark, formerly of the Carnegie Institution, the author of the article, has just returned from Japan. He says:

"Last year the applicants for admission to the academy for training army officers was 1000 less than in 1918 and 2600 less than in 1912; and of the 221 men accepted, 104 later abandoned their right, in order to enter civilian institutions of higher learning."

Furthermore, says Dr. Clark, there recently occurred a popular agitation for the selection of civilians as governors of Korea and Formosa. Previously, army and navy officers exclusively held those posts. But now, thanks to the people's demand, the government has appointed a civilian to the post of governor of Formosa.

The military caste in Japan is thus losing ground.

The mikado's government has disastrous times before it, if its purpose is to meet the cry for manhood suffrage with repression. Wiser advice doubtless eventually will prevail. For there is the lesson of Russia to be studied by rulers who contemplate denying to the Japanese people rights common to the rest of the world.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Holland, as well as England, is to join this country in the ter-centenary celebration of the landing of the Pilgrims, who, after they left England, but before they started for America, settled 12 years at Leyden, Holland.

That's not so many miles from where the ex-kaiser is sheltered.

Holland's celebration might provide him food for melancholy thought. He could devote some evening to it when he hasn't anything worse to worry about. It might give him dolorous satisfaction to trace his defeat, loss of throne and exile back to the fact that the Pilgrims didn't stay in Holland, but crossed the sea and helped start the U. S. A.

Doubtless you have noticed that there have been, no informal meetings of the cabinet lately.

LITTLE MOUSE'S BLUNDER

The little mouse was making believe he was asleep so he could catch Mr. Cat when he came along, for that was what the Mushroom had advised him to do. He certainly was making a good job of it, too, for you'd never have had the least idea he was just pretending.

Pretty soon a shadow appeared, then, sure as anything, there was Mr. Cat himself creeping slyly along the path.

"Now's his chance!" said the Mushroom softly to Nancy and Nick, who were watching nearby. "He should jump up now and say, 'You're my prisoner—' to the cat, as I advised."

But Mr. Cat spied Little Mouse just then and stopped. "Aha!" he exclaimed. "What have we here? If I'm not mistaken it looks like the chief course at a very good dinner." And he licked his whiskers.

"Why doesn't Little Mouse hurry and jump at him?" asked Nancy, worried.

Mr. Cat stepped still nearer to Little Mouse, smiling from ear to ear, and

AIN'T NATURE
WONDERFUL
BY GENE AHERN

Wets figure they've found a knot-hole in the prohibition fence, to neatly hold a combination beer and light wine spigot. Wets claim, you may pull a troter to a near-beer trough, but you can't make him hiccup. Likewise claim, it is softer to push a camel through the ventilated end of a needle, than to turn a whale into a camel. New Jersey is all set on lifting a tall one to blow the collar off on the prohib's bone watchchain.

"So the dame can mingle with her people unobserved for quite a while?" came the next question from the darkness.

"Right?" I answered. "But when the ordinary routine of life is resumed, I think she will come back to the exceedingly elegant and comfortable quarters I now occupy."

"Elegant? Comfortable? Sounds great after what we've had," drawled the cultured voice.

"What have you been having?" I asked.

"Cellars—and caves—cold stones. Plenty of decent food, however."

"I wonder if you could spare a little bread," I ventured slyly. Never in all my life before had I been hungry. It seemed almost disgraceful to speak of it while the matter of our escape was being considered. Perhaps my head was a little light, for I added, unnecessarily and almost apologetically: "I'm Jane Lorimer."

"A Lorimer! For the love of God! Can you beat that?" came up to me in the most astonished and distressed of tones. "Bob Lorimer's wife—"

I had to take off some of my garments in order to tear up the silk for a string. Up came generous portion of a loaf. I nibbled at it as we talked. Never, never had I known the good taste of bread before!

We condensed our plan: I was to make a rope of the covers of the couch and fasten one end to a piece of furniture. By means of the rope, the ranchers would climb through the high ceiling of their cell. Together they would guard the secret panel and after Donna Camilla had entered, she would seize her and we would escape. It was feasible, we agreed. But it would take me some time to tear up the cushion covers.

"If it isn't too much for your strength, Mrs. Lorimer, I would suggest that you roll back that rug and replace the furniture," said one of the men.

His advice proved good. Hardly had I restored the chamber to its original order than I was aware of a warm draft stirring the curls on my forehead. I looked up. Not a sound had I heard. But opposite me, stood Donna Camilla! Her hard eyes fairly glittered at the sight of me.

"So: You're here! Of all places! I never thought of this!" she said in tone which was prodigiously complacent. "You're men are frantic." She smiled at the thought.

"Let me out, Donna Camilla. Let me go to my husband at once," I demanded.

But Donna Camilla only shook her head and smiled again!

Thirty Months of Torment Are Ended

Frankfort, Ky., April 6.—Two years and a half of torment have been ended for Charles Douthitt, whose death sentence has been commuted by Gov. Morrow to life imprisonment. The commutation revealed a curious quirk in official quarters of forgetfulness, inattention or disinclination to sign a death warrant.

Meanwhile, for thirty-one months, Douthitt, convicted in Lyon county of killing Virgil Sims, waited in "Death Row" at Eddyville State Prison, while three successive governors failed to fix a date for his execution. During this time Douthitt has seen eight men pass his cell to the electric chair.

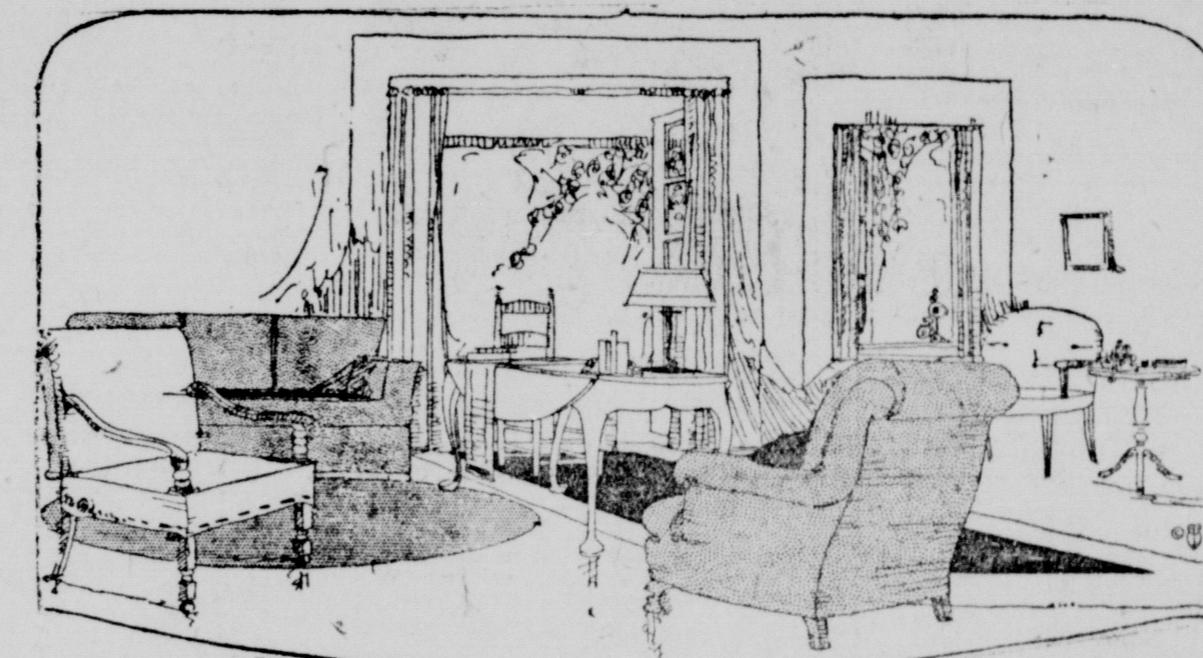

From the narrow confines of his cell Douthitt, who has just reached his majority, heard the sizzling of the electric current that had scorched out lives of murderers. Fear of madness appalled him. He begged visitors to intercede with the governor.

Gov. Stanley was in office when Douthitt entered "Death Row." He was succeeded by Gov. Black when he went to the United States Senate. Both officials failed to fix a date for execution. Gov. Morrow, succeeding Black, also failed to fix date but instead commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. Douthitt's mother, spurred by the knowledge that her offspring had borne a punishment beside which he had said electrocution seemed tame, and newspaper men begged Gov. Morrow for action in the prisoner's behalf.

Seventeen Contests
New York Election

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, April 6.—Republican contests in seventeen congressional districts and one in the state at large for delegates to the national convention furnished the principal interest in today's primaries.

With the exception of the seventeenth district in Manhattan, where two independent candidates for delegates are pledged to support Herbert Hoover, all of the contests were made by candidates favoring the nomination of Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California. The "regular" Republican delegates, named by the unofficial convention last February will go to the convention uninstructed.

The only contest for places on either the Republican or Democratic "big four" delegations was that made by former State Senator William M. Bennett, of Brooklyn, who is pledged to support Johnson. Thirteen of the contests were waged in Manhattan and Brooklyn congressional districts.

Premier Says Govern-

By Others.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Moscow, March 26.—Peace proposals received by the Russian Bolshevik government were outlined by Nikolai Lenin, premier of the soviet government at today's session of the ninth convention of the Communist party. "We are neither at peace nor war and are neither recognized nor unrecognized," he said. "Latvia has made normal peace proposals and Finland's propositions regarding the fixing of a demarcation line are equivalent to peace overtures. Regarding Poland we must be very careful because we are dealing with a government which does not know what it will do tomorrow."

Discussing internal problems, Lenin said centralization or decentralization was the most important question before the convention. While the soviet republic stands unaltered for certain principles such as the abolition of private property he said, history has shown that when the change from a feudal to a bourgeois government was made, the latter availed itself of administrators from former governing classes.

"We are undergoing the same experience," he continued, "and must have capable people who understand technique and administration. We must draw them from the former ruling classes while preparing proletarian workers for administrative positions. A most difficult problem requiring the entire strength of the nation confronts us. We have been victorious along the battle front, but a still more important bloodless victory must be won."

Made By Socialists

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, April 5.—Charges of perjured testimony and a doctored record in the trial of the five Socialists expelled last week from the New York assembly were contained in a statement issued today by the national executive committee of the Socialists.

Under the transportation act the board must maintain central office in Chicago and nine members of the board, three representing the public, are representatives of the public. White House officials said today in explaining the delay in nominating the members of the board.

"The closing hours of the shameful proceedings at Albany, where the fumes of liquor accompanied the commission of the crime, have awakened many thousands to the danger which a war crazed reaction has brought to the nation," read the statement which was headed "the situation was rapidly returning to normal."

MAXWELL

There is a definite reason for the brilliant performance of a Maxwell car.

Lift the bonnet and you see the simplest of engines. Examine clutch and gears, and you see supreme simplicity.

The definite reason for Maxwell performance and endurance is the fine steels, those steels built to Maxwell's own formulas, that combine quality and rare strength, that defy time and the repairman.

This is the story of the Maxwell, the real cause for brilliant performance and long endurance. These steels do not burden the engine. They make its tasks easier. They flatten out a hill for the engine.

The combination of light weight and great strength—the ideal of Maxwell construction—is thus achieved.

And to obtain that rare combination of strength with quality means costly steels. So you will find that, pound for pound, the steels in a Maxwell equal those in any car built.

That is why the rise of Maxwell has been so marked; why nearly 400,000 have been built; why 100,000 are being constructed this year; why these will fill but 60% of the demand.

CHAPTER 104.

Mary was to be married in the Little Church Around the Corner.

"I've wanted to be married in that church ever since I was a poor little kiddle peeking through the fence and thinking it was like heaven in there," she told us when we asked where she was going to have the ceremony.

"There won't be anybody there except you boys and girls, and two or three friends of Gardner's. But I wouldn't feel I was married anywhere else."

"And as I want her to feel married, I think she better have her way," Gardner looked proudly at the bright girl who-without help from anyone, without relatives, almost without a friend-had made a place for herself, and had kept good and sweet.

We had given her our present. She was to be married the next day. They were to go away for a couple of weeks, then go directly to their home. The furniture would all be in, and they would only have to put it in.

Mary laughed, she cried, she hugged us all, even the boys, in her delight at her gift.

"Why girls, if a fairy had told you what to give me—I believe one did—I never could have made those things in the world. Gerry designed them, I'll bet."

"Great idea, Gerry, I'll get Frank enthused. Jane has Carson in leading strings over it now. But what could you expect of the husband of a school ma'am?"

Again after a few days that feeling of depression crept over me. The work for Mary had been but a reprieve. I once more took long walks, tiring myself physically so that I would not fret. Then Mary came back, and the feeling was again interrupted for a couple of days while we helped them settle—or hindered them—Carson said. We had all gone down to assist in putting the furniture in place.

Mary was so happy it was a joy to watch her.

"Girls, I don't believe any one ever had so pretty a bedroom," she said, her eyes shining. We had hung the curtains, made the beds, put everything in place in that room. It was lovely, but none too lovely for Mary.

"Why, girls!" Gardner came in just as we finished. He and the boys had been uncrating the dining room furniture, and had let us alone. "Why—it's perfect! Come here, fellows, and see what a wonderful room these wives of yours have made for us!"

"We helped a little," Carson pretended to point.

"Of course you did!" Mary broke in happily. "I guess the girls had to have things to work with, Gardner. That's where the boys came in."

Tomorrow—Gerry Solves her Problem.

MAN WITH "LUCKITIS" REJECTED BY MARINES

Kansas City, April 6.—Because a thin membranous filament connecting his toes made him web-footed, Frank F. Adams, of Wichita, thought he would make a splendid recruit for that semi-aquatic organization, the United States Marine Corps, and was keenly disappointed when rejected for enlistment here for that very reason. Now Adams believes that if Uncle Sam can't use a man-duck, he still has a mission in life, and is contemplating applying for a position as traffic "cop" in the city of unfixed leaks—Venice.

The recruiting sergeant suggested that Adams acquire water on the knee and a floating kidney with his other accomplishments and then enter the Patagonia Navy.
